Imagine...

Having the tools to be able to find 40 people naturally connected to any child involved in a child protection case.

“

A child separated from parents is inherently vulnerable, even when in the care of the government or a charity.

Kevin Campbell

Family Finding is the most radical approach yet devised to equip child protection services to act with urgency to find and involve every naturally connected person available to support the vulnerable child or young person.

Bootcamp

Family Finding Boot Camps are a four-day immersion for staff, supervisors and managers in learning the philosophy, framework and skills of Family Finding practice. The goal for the training is to find 40 or more relatives and other connections, identify family members with functional strengths, engage two lead family members, and invite 12 or more adults to a Preparation and Planning Meeting to be held within two weeks of the training. Participants leave the Boot Camp having learned and practiced the skills of Family Finding, developed a sense of confidence in their use of the skills, and most importantly gained the understanding that Family Finding for most youth and families takes less than 20 hours and can be completed in weeks rather than months.

Kevin Campbell is an internationally known youth permanency expert, founder of the Center for Family Finding and Youth Connectedness and developer of the Family Finding model, a set of strategies now utilized over 200 jurisdictions across the United States and Canada to establish lifelong supports for youth in foster care. Kevin continues to develop strategies to address the epidemic levels of loneliness that youth in foster care experience while waiting for a chance to go home to their relatives or to be adopted. He has helped over 10,000 youth achieve permanency and continues to help up to 80 foster youth per week.

Considerable research has demonstrated the effectiveness of the approach and has drawn US federal government attention and endorsement. The use of Family Finding has been mandated in law by presidents Bush and Obama in 2008, 2011 and 2014. With its success in North America, Kevin is increasingly introducing the Family Finding approach internationally.
